Rick Vestal

Whose woods these are I think I know.
His house is in the village though;
He will not see me stopping here
To watch his woods up with snow.

My little horse must think it queer
To stop without a farmhouse near
Between the woods and frozen lake
The darkest evening of the year.

He gives his harness bells a shake
To ask if there is some mistake.
The only other sound's the sweep
Of easy wind and downy flake.

The woods are lovely dark and deep.
But I have promises to keep,
And miles to go before I sleep,
And miles to go before I sleep.

AND MILES TO GO

"And Miles To Go." Not simply the title of a yearbook, or only a poem. It is a measure of us and our school. It shows us that we all have miles to go, whether it be in our high school experience, off to college, or in some other direction. Perhaps now more than ever the miles of our lifetime are more open to us, as we are still ideolistic, open-minded and ready to meet the challenges before us. Our direction, our road, is ours to make. It was our walk through this school year, and this lifetime. We must begin to choose our paths, molded partially through our years at Air Academy. Robert Frost writes in another of his poems, "Two roads diverged in a wood, and I -I took the one less traveled by, And that has made all the difference." Now is the time to choose our roads, and to make the most of our lives.

I'm glad we got to know each other this year. You're a great guy! I'm sorry I babbled so much during all those walks to Brink's class. Next year you can talk, kay? You're a real sweetheart. See ya during the summer. Call me sometime!

Singing songs by the Grateful Dead, the Kadets arrived at school on the first day of Homecoming week wearing bell-bottoms and love beads for hippie day. Nervous freshmen kept a low profile as Homecoming tradition went into play, including initiation. As freshmen sang the fight song from the tops of tables on Tuesday, they could see nothing but the laurel leaves and togas of students dressed for spirit days. On Wednesday, students clad in boxer shorts spoke of the big event that evening: The Powderpuff Game. After a messy game, the seniors emerged victorious with a score of 20-0. After the game, players and fans enjoyed a chili feed in the cafeteria. Gangsters and their floozies roamed the school on Thursday for mafia day. After the soccer game on Thursday night, students celebrated Air Academy's win with a bonfire. Homecoming week wound down with the traditional blue and silver day and students looked forward with anticipation to the Homecoming Game.

vitality and

What is the ultimate way to end an exciting week of Homecoming festivity? For the Kadets, it was a hard-fought victory over the Sierra Stallions with a final score of 21-13. Going into the game, the team was well aware that they were up for a tough battle. Things did not look good when Sierra was the first team to put points on the scoreboard. Two touchdowns by Stacy Arent in the second quarter soon ended Air Academy's worries. Joe DeBerry contributed a touchdown in the third quarter as the Kadets pulled ahead, but the Stallions rallied with another touchdown and possession of the ball as the clock counted down. With only six seconds left, Sierra had the ball at the one yard line. Thanks to a tackle by defensive end Chris Baker, Sierra's touchdown attempt was unsuccessful and the Kadet victory was final. During halftime, the marching band took to the field and formed the letters AA. The Homecoming court arrived on the field in a parade of Corvettes while the crowd waited to hear who was the 1987 Homecoming Queen. Jill Kovarik was the winner of the title, attended by seniors Ann Cunningham and Emily Macomber, junior Christie Aguilar, sophomore Julie Anderson and freshman Tiffany Pappan. The Student Council presented the Kadet Award to Rock Campbell for his involvement with Air Academy after his retirement. The Homecoming celebration was brought to an end the next evening as students enjoyed a night of dancing and romance. "The Best of Times" Homecoming dance was held at The Embassy Suites Hotel followed by an After-Homecoming from 1 to 4 at Castaways.

Classes

SENIORS — We Have Arrived

As the class of 1988, we were described as the seniors, but what did that really mean? It meant we had seniority: SENIORTY - n.,pl. -ties. 1. The state of being older or higher in rank. 2. Precedence of position; especially precedence over others of the same rank by reason of a longer span of service. 3. The Class of 1988! After three grueling years of fighting our way to the top, we found that we had reached the summit of the school. Below us we saw eleven other classes as they struggled to gain our position. Above us we saw the vast possibilities of our futures. Sitting at the top we discovered that the past four years of high school were preparing us to expand beyond our previous limits. Struggling through everyday life and pondering a future career proved to be the greatest trials in our senior year. After reaching this first milestone of our lives we move on to the challenges of the world.

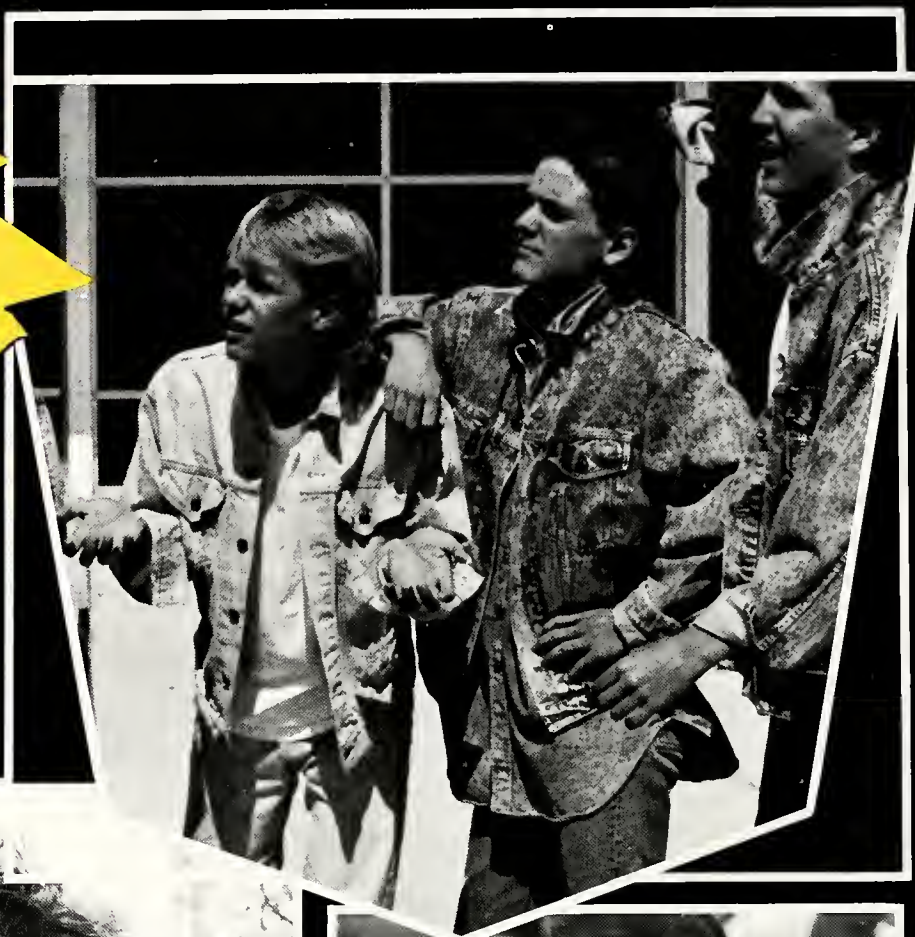
JUNIORS

Our Junior "GQ" models, Steve Livingston and Jerry Melchisedeck, marvel at the blast of being Juniors while Bill Herebic has other things to worry about.



Two heads are better than one and Lanette Dairy and Michelle Lindsey have a double good time being Juniors.

Juniors Get Busy

Now here's a little rap we've got to tell
About the jammin' Junior class you might not know so well.
They started way back in elementary
But now they're upperclassmen for all to see.
The Juniors you'll find have got it all together-
Independence, talent, and friends they'll have forever.
They have a certain style that one can't ignore
And when it comes to saving face their Kadet pride does soar!!

Although the Junior year is said to be the hardest year academically, Gretchen Buck finds amusement in her Math Analysis book.

The "Cinnamon Toast Crunch Bakers," Sean Riley and Tim Smith show off their expertise in preparing culinary delicacies.

"It's not that we're cliquish, it's just that each person has their own interests and people function better when they're with people who share those interests. That's how we get jocks, fine arts people, and intellectuals. We don't have cliques because each group supports the others. Performing arts gets a lot of support from the athletic group and vice versa."

The junior class made Air Academy look good! Not only were they colorful and always in the spotlight but they added a new dimension to the word diverse. The juniors weren't found hiding in the shadows or blending in with the woodwork- they were waiting to be discovered! This was proved by their individual, independent, yet unified actions. For instance, at school they tended to "hang out" with a few people or a certain group. But when all the juniors got together, watch out!! A completely new group was formed. A group of people that would do anything for each other. This years junior class wore such a reflection of their achievements that everyone else just paled in comparison.

SOPHOMORES

WE'RE HALFWAY THERE!

Two down and two to go, the class of 1990 is on their way up. For students, their sophomore year was filled with great memories. Most of them, by now, have a driver's license, which leads to one thing, freedom; the freedom to go places without nagging anyone for a ride.

Sophomores were active in sports, and mostly made their mark in J.V. and Varsity. They were also involved in activities, such as K.N.O.W., cheerleading and foreign language clubs. Meetings, fundraisers, practices, and parties kept them extremely busy from August to May. The class of '90 gave a lot and received a lot from this past year.

For the sophomores of Air Academy, their first two years of high school have brought some great times. However, the class of '90 knows the best is yet to come!

FRESHMEN: ALONG A NEW PATH

Well, what every Freshman has anticipared has come and gone. The first year of high school has come to an end. There will be no more jammed lockers or hallway casualities. All in all the Freshmen this year were pretty cool. They supported acrivities and clubs with grear enthusiasm, and most achieved a sense of essential school pride. Lessons were learned, dues were paid, and now they have earned the honor of representing the school. However, they will now have the burden of reaching the upcoming Freshmen what it means to be a student at our school. It is up to them to keep the repuration that years before have built up. Congratulations to the Freshman class on a successful year and the fun shared by all.

Faculty

Motivation And Diligence

The key to any well-oiled machine is its driver. The administration served as the driver as they led Air Academy High School to one of its most successful years. Dr. James Ferguson used his second year to the fullest and initiated many new programs. As a support group, Linda Kroll, Larry Glueckert, and Steve Moran gave honor to the title of Assistant Principal. Mike Lynch and Paul Angelico rounded out the administrators by heading the athletics and activities departments. The administration used their skills and desire to make Air Academy a reservoir of knowledge while providing the right balance of social and extra-curricular activities to satisfy both the student body and the faculty.

The administrators are: Mr. Larry Glueckert, Mrs. Linda Kroll, Dr. James Ferguson, and Mr. Steve Moran.

Mike Lynch and Paul Angelico smilin' pretty.

Counselors include: Tom Zabel, Marita Dragren, Mike Seeley, Jeri Bugg, and secretary Patti Sattler. Not pictured: Joan Marsh and Dale Wilber.

Mrs. Kroll demonstrates how to do the "Egyptian."

Ms. Morsh gives friendly advice about colleges.

The Board of Directors includes: Joyce Hartung Pres., Mary Bush, Dee Buffington, Lt. Col. Barry Oswell, William Jacobs, and Elizabeth Anderson.

The Board of Directors and Central office of Administrators did an outstanding job leading the District. The highlights of their accomplishments included the opening of Liberty High School and passing the mill levy of 29.8 million dollars. Their decisions affected the entire District and they used their power wisely. With Dr. Thomas Crawford as superintendent and Joyce Hartung as President of the Board of Directors, the growth of the area and other problems District 20 faced were handled with skill. With this kind of effective leadership, the road ahead of District 20 was smooth and easy.

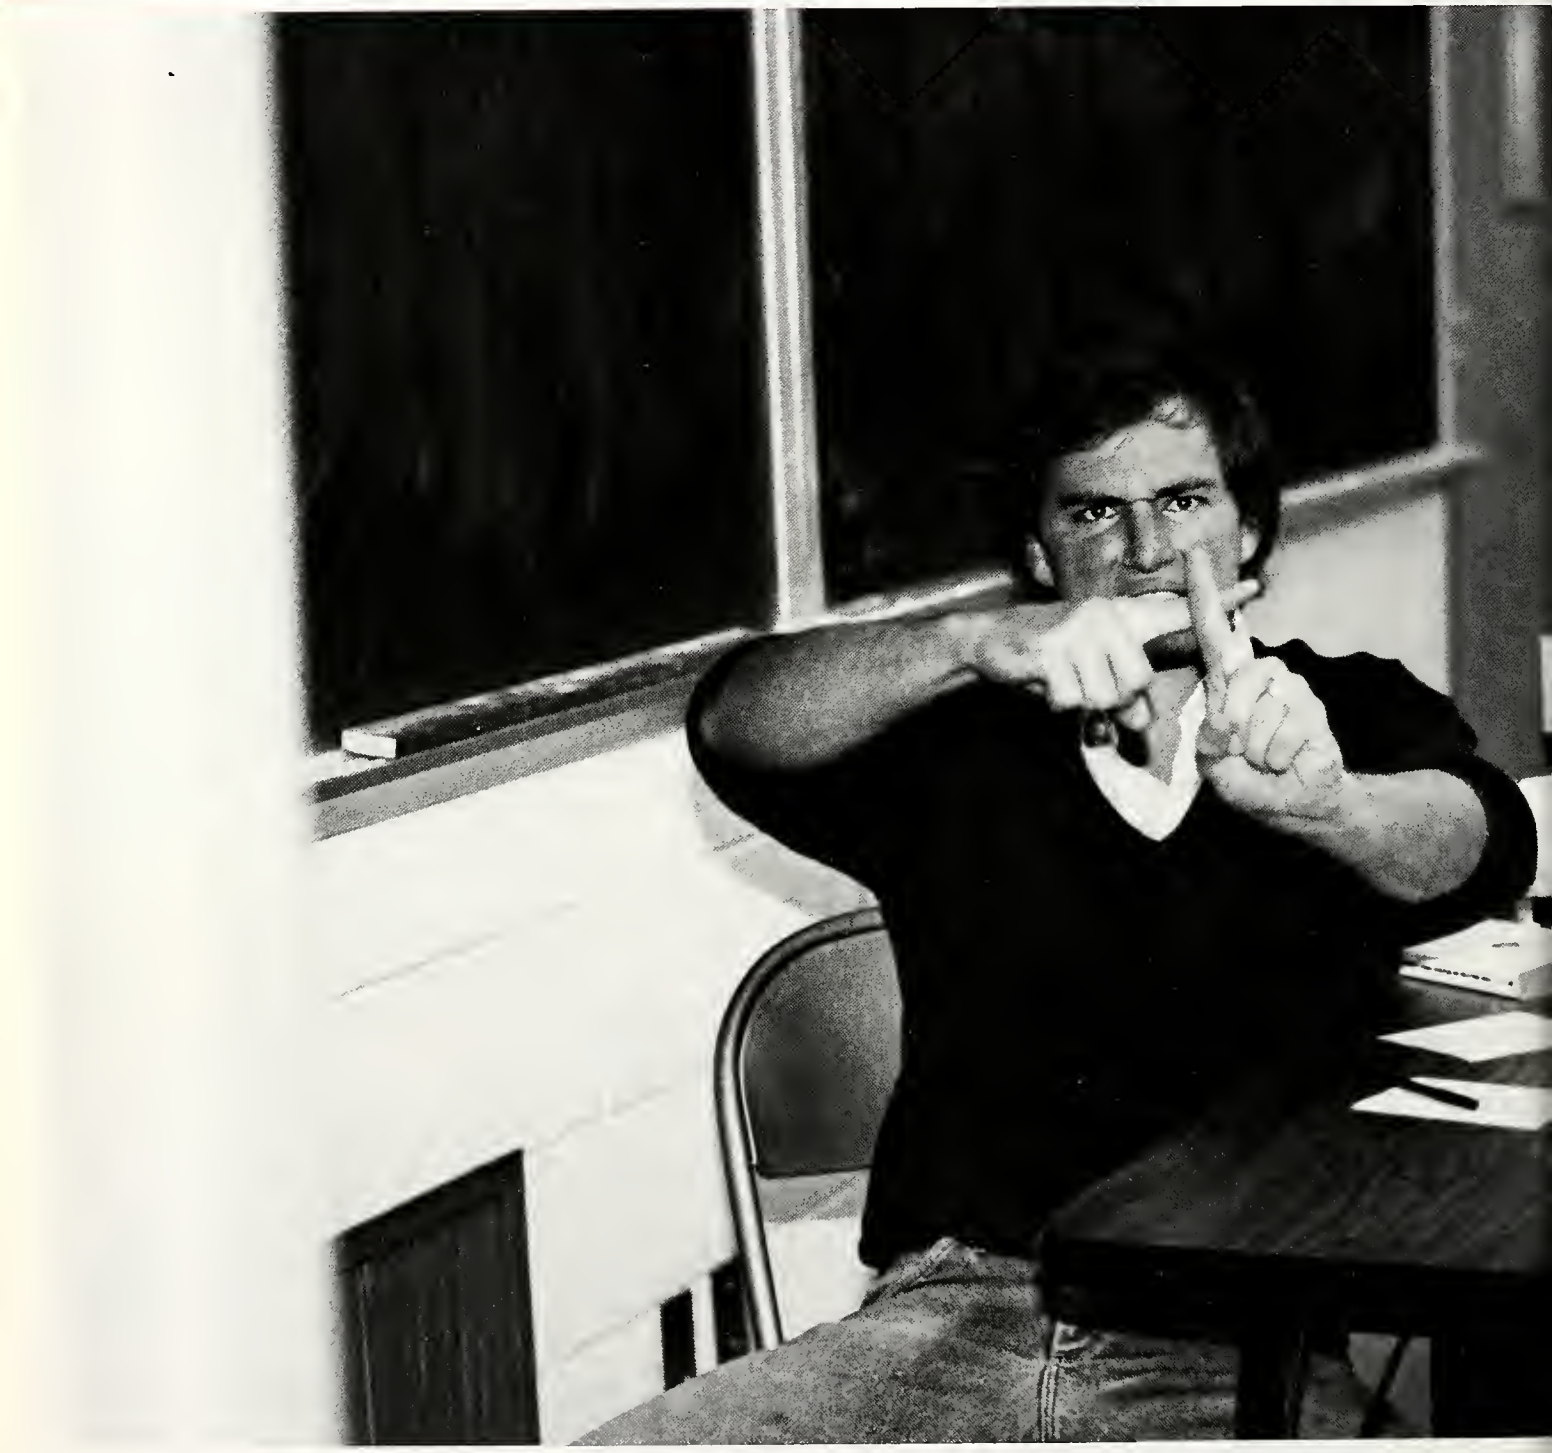
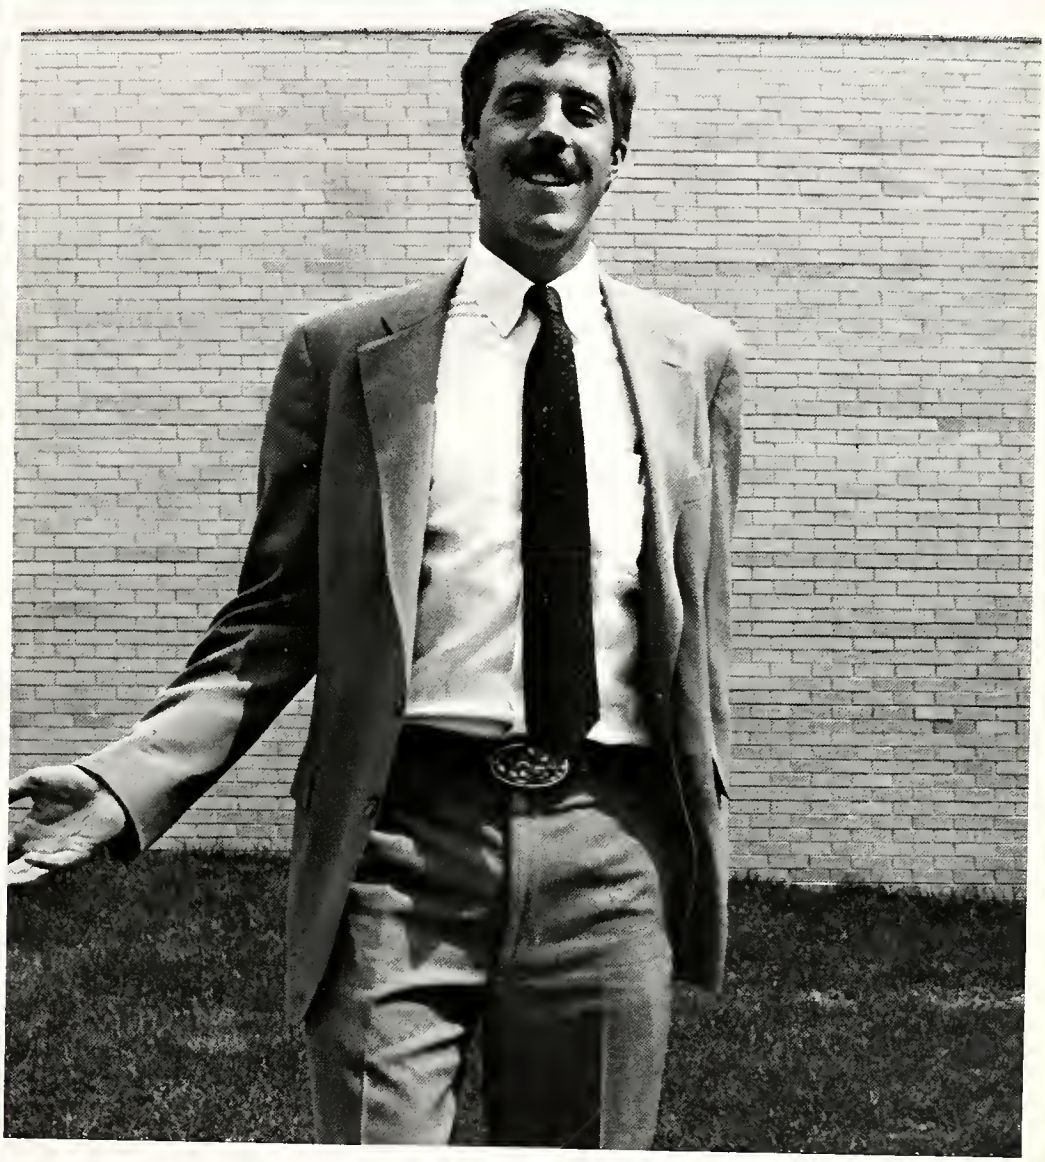
The Ways And Means Of SUCCESS



"Back! Stay back!" cries Mr. Born after another test.



Although the school system centers on the student, it is the teacher who advances the learning process. The 1987-88 faculty saw the beginning of a new family of teachers. With the addition of the new high school, many of the old veterans were whisked away. To fill the void, ten new teachers entered the ranks. This year, the teachers committed themselves to fostering a positive environment along with academic excellence. The bond between student and teacher remained strong. It was strengthened by the third successful year of Help Night and the staff's availability during AC-AD-IM-Y and after school. With their pride and unity, the teachers achieved a family atmosphere that aided in their continued sharing of knowledge.

isualizing and strerching- the guys do everything they can to prepare themselves for the District meet.

edrik Folkeryd, Terry Hall and Coach Rischling always seem be monkeying around during practice.

After spending almost three months lifting weights, running hundreds of miles and concentrating on victory, it was only natural that the boys cross-country team breezed through the year with a second place finish at Districts and an eighth place finish at State. It took a burly runner to complete some of the most demanding practices. One of the reasons that the boys worked so hard was due to the large number of people on the team. Competition to get on the varsity team continued throughout the entire season. As a result, when District day arrived the boys were definitely rough, tough and ready to run. When the starting gun went off, the boys put their nervousness aside and took off. Naturally, they were fast. Terry Hall was the first Air Academy runner, placing third overall, followed by Pat Worden with a fourth place finish. Finishing second in the District qualified the boys for the State meet. They had been quick at Districts but they wanted to be even quicker at State. An eighth place finish proved them to be one of the best teams in Colorado.

The only way to succeed is to be relentless, like a shark approaching its prey. The girls cross-country team caught their prey to defend the title of District Champions. Throughout the season, the girls concentrated on their goal of being one of the best teams in the state. Workouts were tough, including both long, slow runs and speed workouts. The coaches hoped to build the girls' endurance and speed until they were the toughest runners on the course. An important part of their preparation was visualization in which the girls would imagine themselves running a race. As the District meet approached, the conditioning intensified. During visualization, Coach Rischling advised the girls to run "relaxed and relentless like a shark and catch your prey." Following his instructions, the girls fought their way to the District Championship, proving the other teams to be mere shark bait. A 13th place showing in the State meet ended the season which was definitely both fast and furious.

The Golf team once again took the league by storm. Stroke after stroke further elevated the team's ability and league standing. True to form, the golf team finished off with a stunning 13 and 1 record. This earned them a second place position. Although Districts were somewhat of a disappointment for the Kadet golfers, they had nothing to be ashamed of. All season long the team played with spirit and determination, and redefined the meaning of the word champion.

Mr. Woodworth's leadership strengthened the potential of the team. He provided new techniques that helped the players improve their game. Most importantly, he encouraged them to have fun with the game and to always do the best job possible.

Golf is a different kind of sport. It requires a lot of personal dedication and support from team members. The Golf team was supplied with devoted players, both to each other and their game.

"We're young but we're good," summed up this year's gymnastics season. Head coach Mr. Mullins organized a team consisting of freshmen, sophomores, and two seniors. Early victories at Pueblo South and Douglas County set the momentum that the team carried throughout the season. They learned to work together and to cooperate through the "ups and downs" during the season. Kris Westmoreland then led the spirited team to an impressive second place finish at the District Tournament. Their strong showing at state showed the power of the Air Academy gymnastics team.

touch down!

"We really learned to work like a team this year. If defense was slacking, offense would pick them up and vice versa," said Scott Stanley about the incredible AA football team this year. The Kaders had their best team since 1984, winning the Northern League title and doing brilliantly at State. The Kaders' 6-0 win over Douglas County in the Playoffs was followed by a suspenseful win over Loveland in the Quarterfinals in which AA scored its first touchdown with the score 10-0 and six minutes left on the clock. The Kaders were narrowly defeated in a tense game against Pueblo County in the Semi-finals. With only seconds remaining and the score 7-14, the Kaders scored, almost putting the game ino overtime.

Besides the awesome teamwork, what accounted for such a great season? "The fans at the games were really supportive. The players could sense that, which made them play better," said Coach Roof. As the season came to a close, the football team had gained the respect of their opponents and the admiration of the student body.

This year was a year of firsts for the Junior Varsity football team. With a record of five wins and four losses, it was their first winning season. They also beat Rampart and Mitchell for the first time in history. Hard work and strong leadership from both Coach Gagnon and Coach Geis made the season fun and exciting, "Coach Geis and I enjoyed working with these fine, young, talented men. We are looking for success from them in the future," commented Coach Gagnon on his team.

victory

This year was also a year of firsts for freshman foorball. Not only did the frosh defeat the freshmen reams of Rampart and Mitchell for the first time in Air Academy history, but they had an undefeated season, something no other Air Academy freshman team has ever done. "The undefeated season," said Coach Burghart, "that's what is really important. It was our goal at the beginning of the year." From the first game against the 4-A school, Mitchell, to the final contesr versus Coronado, the Kaders looked hot, edging out Mitchell 16-14 and destraying rival Rampart by the score of 22-10. As Coach Campbell put it, having a record of 8-0 this year was truly the "feast of the Kaders."

commies

The school spirit for the Varsity Soccer team was stronger than ever this year, which is no surprise since they added a new dimension to the word "successful." They applied what they learned from their slow start toward the rest of the season, which resulted in a very strong finish, and an impressive record of 8-4-2. Highlights of the year include the suspenseful game with Doherty, last year's Metro League champs, that ended in a tie, and the strong comeback against Lewis Palmer, which resulted in a Katet win of 2-1. With nine underclassmen, the team should be even stronger in the future. Most importantly, all of the players had an incredible time and played some great soccer. Scott Perelstein, captain of the team and Most Valuable Player, summed the year up by saying, "We had more fun than any other team in the league and we had the best-looking managers."

nucleus

"They have the nucleus of being a state championship team if and only if they can establish oneness as a group over individual performance." This was stated by coach Raiko, a new addition to the coaching staff at Air Academy. J.V. Soccer was made up of two seperate teams, the blue team which was coached by Mr. Raiko and the silver team coached by Mr. Dellacrosse. The two teams kicked, scored, and headhurted their way to some quite impressive records. The blue team finished with a 10-2-2 record and the silver with a 8-3-1 season. When asked about a most valuable player or improved player Mr. Dellacrosse replied; "There weren't just one or two players that expressed these qualities. To single out any one would be impossible. Each team member expressed outstanding achievements that were benefidal to the team."

Water: The final frontier. These are the victories of the Kadet Swim Team. Thrown into a newly rearranged Metro League, the women's swim team emerged with an impressive record of eight wins and two losses. The large number of members lent depth and support to the team and was one of its major assets. The team was also characterized by some outstanding individuals.

Diving Coach Rose Rook led one of the best groups of divers in the history of the school. Captain Julie Frank was the only returning diver. She scored very well at the dual meets as well as at the district meet. Dierdre Linnan joined the divers this season and used her incredible gymnastics skills to progress rapidly. Bringing past diving experience to the team, Tina Lademan was also very valuable. A former swimmer on the team Shannon Herber joined the divers and mastered a number of dives in an amazingly short period of time. Amy Bliss, another new diver, worked hard and added depth to the team.

Coaches Diana Doepken and Sharon Waad provided the leadership necessary for a successful season. Eight of the team members travelled to Fort Collins to participate in the State Meet. Shannon Smith, a junior, placed 14th in the state, in both the 200yd. free and the 100yd. butterfly. The free relay team of Kathleen Clarke, Charissa Triantos, Lisa Werner and Shannon Smith ended the team's spectacular season by breaking the school's record for this event. The entire team was proud of the victorious season.

The tennis team, coached by Mrs. Glueckert, had a successful year with a 9-2 record. Co-captains Lance Pape and Mike Pine showed leadership qualities which were an important factor to each match. The most valuable player on the team was Miguel Anton, a foreign exchange student from Spain. He added a new dimension to the team and everyone learned from him. The number one singles player, Mark Reynolds, inspired the team by having an optimistic attitude. With the leadership and spectacular tennis skills of these players as well as the rest of the team, the Kadets managed to have a winning season.

The team started with a smash, having five returning varsity players. They had a 6-6 record, which was due to their hard work and individual skills. The girls spent many dedicated hours practicing after school to improve their playing. Coach Shelly Caceres said, "The Kaders' uniqueness was outstanding and they were always ready to work."

Each member of the team possessed a different element which added to their success. This quality brought unity throughout the members of the team.

"Go, fight, win," seemed to be the cheer that stuck into the J.V. volleyball players' minds the most. The team showed tremendous efforts in serves, passes, and spiking. Much improvement was noticed between their first and last games.

The J.V. team, coached by Diana Mayfield, had a record of 12 and 4. Coach Mayfield thought this last season was very successful.

"The girls really progressed in their skills. The last week they came on strong. They beat Rampart 15-0 in the first game, and had an overall win. It was a great season!"

The J.V. team finished third in the league.

The freshmen volleyball squads seemed to impress the crowds that saw them play. Even though this was their first year playing high school volleyball, they certainly weren't afraid to be agressive. The two teams, the Blue and the Silver, played very well in both defense and offense positions. Excellent blocking and strong serving contributed to their wins. By alternating games, many freshmen got a chance to participate in this sport. Thanks to a great start, with the help of Jennifer Teal, their coach, these young athletes will be a great asset to the Varsity squad in a couple of years!

experience

A group of eight high spirited girls with a great deal of experience made up the team of Varsity cheerleaders this year. There were two juniors and six seniors who worked together to support athletes at every sporting event. They met at least once a week to practice for two hours.

With Janelle Bryarly as captain, Varsity cheerleaders learned about team work and cooperation. They uplifted the spirit and involvement of the crowd, and conveyed Air Academy pride!

The pom pon squad made their debut this year. It was a group of ten girls whose specialty was their own dance routines. Pom pon squad sponsered by Mr. Spear spent six hours a week practicing. The girls of the squad performed these fast upbeat routines throughout the year at assemblies and games. They entertained the crowds of football games at half time and cheered along with the Varsity cheerleaders. Raising spirit was a hard job but the pom pon squad did it with grace.

rah

What makes a cheerleader? According to this year's Junior Varsity squad it takes a team commitment and a true dedication to all activities within the school. The cheerleaders had to accept a lot of responsibility in leading the crowd. There are no cheerleaders for the cheerleaders. They must rely on their own spirit for motivation. Close ties between the girls developed this year as they depended on each other for inspiration. Although we may never know how much they contributed to the success of other teams, it was obvious that they were successful among themselves.

"Cheerleading is being there for the team and cheering them on whether we're winning or not."

emotions

This year's Freshman cheerleading squad was the epitome of the class of '91-spirited and energetic. The girls cheered enthusiastically for the freshmen teams. In addition, they generated excitement and spirit during the assemblies. At all of the sporting events, the cheerleaders conducted themselves with an aura of school pride as they cheered the sports of Air Academy on to victory. There is not much prestige in being a cheerleader for the freshmen teams but these girls did a great job and they say a lot for the school and its athletic program.

The shorter teammates were just as aggressive and scored just as many points. The Kadets had a very successful season and put up a good fight in many games. They all worked together and teamwork and cooperation were their main goals.
Coach Van Tassel explained, "Champions are made, not born."

Boys basketball has been successful in past years and this year was no exception for the Freshmen, Sophomore, and Junior Varsity squads.

From the season opener the Freshmen boys basketball team has been exciting. They won every game in the first half of their schedule. Hard work and rough practices under the supervision of Coach Roof have helped the Frosh to run all over opponents. Part of the fun of playing freshmen ball is to learn the basics for next year.

The Sophomore boys basketball team was also praiseworthy. Being one step up on the Freshmen squad didn't absolve them from hard work though, as they put in many long hours of practice for their coach, Mr. Burghart.

The closest to playing Varsity were the guys on the J.V. squad. Some of these players rotated to Varsity while the rest worked to find a spot on next year's team. Coach Morse took these men far in terms of mental and physical discipline and because of that the Varsity looks incredible for next year.

The Freshmen, Sophomore, and Junior Varsity "hoopsters" had some kind of fun this year and what's more, their records showed their Kadet talent.

Running, conditioning, and the basics were the building blocks of the girls' Varsity Basketball team. Despite their difficult season, the girls worked hard and were never short on effort. In the words of Coach Paula Hergert, this year was a "building year." Hergert, a girls' basketball coach of four years, stressed the fundamentals of the game. Through large amounts of running and drilling, she prepared her team not only for this year, but for years to come. Although the points were rarely in their favor, the girls on the Varsity Basketball team were taught to be winners: to work hard and never lose heart.

Winning was what the JV girl's basketball team was all about this year. They were 8 and 0 in league play, and during the second half of the season they doubled their margin of victory over each opponent. Ms Mayfield believed the team's ability to run the offense was the key to their success. Angie Sevier, point guard, was the offensive standout. Kirsten Eggleston, one of the team captains, was like a second coach on the court. She helped keep the girls working together and set the team up on the court. The other captain, Michelle Archuleta, also showed a great deal of leadership and used this to help form team spirit. As a working unit the girls proved to be a strong force and a formidable foe. Look for these powerhouses next year; they're going to be great.

The Freshman girls' basketball team had an excellent season. Overall they were 13-2, but this fantastic season wasn't the only thing that made them different from years past. One of the most noticeable characteristics of this team was the fact that it was a team of different cliques. These various cliques of the student body, however, didn't hinder the basketball teamwork. In fact, the freshman girls, because of their differences, seemed to form a closer-knit group. According to Mr. Gagnon this was a very talented team which can be refined if they keep working together. These girls gave Coach Gagnon one of the most enjoyable and satisfying coaching experiences he's had.

At the end of the season awards were given to Tanya Pence, Most Valuable Player, Most Improved; and Layne McCombs, The Most Inspiring Player. On the whole, however, it can be said that these girls "love the game of basketball."

Sport Of Champions

"Hockey's the best!" "I live for Hockey." "Why do I like Hockey? Because of the violence." "It's the best sport in the world!" So goes a typical response from an A.A. hockey player when asked about the sport. To attend a hockey game was to feel the same excitement expressed by the players. The crowds had a rush of enthusiasm and injected the players with a drive to succeed. The team has had one of the best seasons in its history at A.A. The contributing factors were the early morning practices, teamwork, and the wonderful coaching skills from Mr. Marshall. This was all beneficial in the team's quest for victory.

"Swimmers, take your mark . . . , and they're off!" The Kadet swimmers give another fantastic performance. They dove right into many victories in the 1987-1988 season with an impressive record.

These swimmers and divers certainly lived up to their reputation of being a top team in Colorado Springs. Throughout the season the Kadets continued to grow and strengthen. Most importantly, they dedicated themselves and improved their individual performances in terms of times.

The divers stunned spectators with their talent. When the team's score against the opponents was close going into the diving competition, they always managed to pull the Kadets to a strong lead. The divers come through for their coach Rose Rook, and the rest of the team on every dive.

The 1987-1988 swim team was lead by Jason Plante and Jeff Selby, the team's captains. Leadership was also shown by the team's seniors, Dave LoPresti with state qualifying times Brad Theil, Erik Habbinga, Brian Cassadro, Randy Bourgeois and Anthony Villatoro. As the Seniors move on, the underclassmen will move up and continue the team's success.

Tough competition for each swimmer and diver pushed them to perform their best. Sharon Wood, the team's coach, was quoted, "The Kadets only allowed one team to interrupt their winning season. Their drive and determination put them at the top."

The Varsity Wrestling team had no problems when it came to showing their stuff on the mat. The team consisted of five seniors, three juniors, and four sophomores. Practices were held every day after school and rigorous training was involved. These sessions were considered to be conditioning and practice or "prep match" workouts.

The one thing a wrestler worries about most of all, is maintaining the weight in which they must be, in order to compete. When asked about cutting weight, coach Klinsing replied, "In order to lose one half a pound they may chew gum and spit, or even just break a sweat. But I personally encourage good nutrition and diet to lose the weight."

While wrestling is a major sport, it often doesn't get the credit it deserves. Many people lack knowledge of the sport. How are points gained? What determines who wins? A wrestling match is made up of three periods of two minutes each. The opponents start in a neutral position which consists of standing three feet apart from each other. The object of the match is to obtain as many points as possible. One way to increase one's score is by a takedown to the mat, thereby controlling the opponent. An automatic win occurs when one competitor is pinned on the mat for four seconds or has accumulated a 15-point advantage. Regardless of the chosen training technique, their season was outstanding and coach Klinsing was pleased with his wrestlers' physical and mental attitudes.

The Junior Varsity wrestling team was composed of many young and inexperienced wrestlers. Learning the basics and preparing for next year were the goals of the team. Their inexperience was overcome as they learned new holds and moves, and by the end of the season, each became an exceptional competitor. Each wrestler quickly found that learning to wrestle was more important than a strong win-loss record. Through the correction of mistakes by first year Coach Geis, the young wrestlers showed noticeable improvement from match to match, and were prepared for Varsity by the end of the season.

With cheers of support from his teammates fading off into the distance, an Air Academy freshman wrestler turns to receive that last nod of encouragement from Coach Mullins. That is all he needs, that little nod, before he can walk alone on the mat, his field of battle. He receives instructions from the referee, glares at his opponent who is glaring back, and feels his heart jump within himself. Sooner than expected both warriors are grappling, struggling for a advantage, wondering if the other is as tired as he. Our AA grappler gets taken down yet counters quickly with a new move learned only the weeks before. He had practiced the move over and over until it became second nature while still feeling he may not be ready to use it. He was ready. With this countermove his opponent found himself helplessly on his back. Three seconds later he was pinned. Our freshman wrestler jumps up in victory and raises his arm with pride. He is on his way to reaching his goal and his smile lets us know he is thinking of next year while also thinking of his next match.

Freshmen wrestlers like Dan Ward can learn a lot from Varsity wrestlers like Tim Hurtado.

BAND TURNS 30

Shelly Steen and Liz Vandersarl are the Pied Pipers of AA.

The AA Band turned 30 this year. It is hard to believe that what started out as a group of ten teenagers banging out notes on rusty instruments would develop into the present-day band, one of the prides of Air Academy. This change has not been easy, but it occurred because of the dedication of those involved. It was, and still is, not easy to be a band member. In addition to committing themselves to hours upon hours of practice and performance, they were expected to maintain a certain degree of spirit in the school. Not only did the band have to look and sound good, but it was their job to make AA feel good as well.

But what did these 30 years create? How has the band held up to these pressures? Remarkably well. In fact, Band has probably become the top spirit organization in the school, and definitely in the state, placing second at CSU's marching band competition. They were present at all of the State football games and all of the home basketball games. During football season at home, they gave performances during half-time and celebrated the holiday season and festivities with a Christmas concert. All in all, the band has been a pillar of strength and spirit in Air Academy throughout the past 30 years. Happy Birthday, Band, and many more!

Show Choir

Show Choir was a mixed voice group that studied and performed jazz, popular music and show music. They were accompanied by a small instrumental rhythm section. Choreography, high energy, rhythm and creativity were all parts of Show Choir's performances. The members were asked to put in outside, individual practice time since they performed for many school concerts, Montage, community activities and other organizations. Under the direction of Mr. Filsinger, Show Choir was an upbeat group that was an asset to Air Academy's music program.

This year's Jazz Band never left competitions with less than excellent ratings. They captured their audiences' attention with their talent and love for playing. The members performed in festivals all over Colorado, gave three concerts at school throughout the year, and played in Montage.

Each year, the Jazz Band continues to please their audiences. What makes this band so successful? Mr. Shaw explained:

"Jazz is an entirely different style of music. It forces students to be more creative than Concert and Marching Band. Most important, it's easy and a lot of fun!"

What A Way To Go

This year's concert choir was made up of fifty kids singing a variety of music. From the hard rock Christian beat of Stryper to the classical sounds of the fifteenth century, this group sang their material at Fall and Christmas concerts, and in the halls of AAHS itself. Songs such as "Sing Gloria" as well as the Happy Birthday tune were sung with equal intensity — but with a touch of lightheartedness.

This Concert Choir was unlike any in the past. Previous to this year, this group was often thought of as a collection of low talent singers trying to get better. This year marked a turning point. As Mr. Filsinger put it, "It's (Concert Choir) a bit zany, but its changing. Its becoming its own group, not a spinoff of the other choirs."

Lara Whelan and Jennifer Busby discuss Mr. Filsinger's bald spot before class.

Family Ties

The chamber singers were described by audiences as "phenomenal." This group, consisting of 16 people, focused on serious music literature from the fifth century to the present with a strong emphasis on a cappella arrangements. These talented young musicians performed all over Colorado. At the Madrigal Festival during the Fall, they astounded the competitors. This was a period when family ties played an important role. Lori Craig said, "When you know your parents are behind you 100% it makes you proud and to perform your best." The director of the chamber singers was quoted as saying "they motivate." By this he meant they asked for higher level music and more of it! This dedication payed off when seven of these vocalists out of eleven that auditioned for All State choir were accepted.

All State qualifier Mark Pitts sings his best at one of the Chamber performances.

Montage was a musical production directed by vocal music teacher Dave Filsinger. This year's theme was T.V. re-runs. A cast of about two hundred students starred in and wrote skits, dances, and songs. These cast members worked together to produce a show that lasted two hours and was filled with laughs. Montage did a series of shows, on the nights of November 12, 13 and 14 at Air Academy High School. Students who couldn't make it these nights could watch exerpts on November 12 during AC-AD-IMY period. Montage also traveled to Eagleview Middle School and Rampart & Liberty High Schools.

Brooke Proctor is amused by Jeff Ogburn's off-the-wall humor.

Who Done It?

No alibi was needed by students that attended the play on the nights of February 25, 26, or 27. This Ayn Rand murder drama, The Night of January Sixteenth was performed by twenty-one students and was directed by Mrs. Rapp.

Through this play, the actors showed their enthusiasm for theater. They also demonstrated a dedication to giving a professional performance and, most importantly, entertaining their audience.

This performance gave AA actresses and actors the opportunity to learn new vocal and dramatic techniques. They were taught to develop their own characters linguistically through spoken lines and kinetically through stage movements, all of which finally created believable dramatis personnae.

NHS

Students representing the top academic achievers of Air Academy made up the National Honor Society. Seven service groups led the way by donating their time and energy to help worthwhile service organizations such as giving aid to Silver Key and helping out at the soup kitchen. The groups initiated many projects including the honors assembly and a food drive for the needy. Mrs. Wickliff's first year as NHS sponsor proved to be a successful one. The Air Academy NHS chapter rounded out a year of accomplishments with the annual spring picnic.

The quickest buzzers in the West!

This is Jeopardy .... No, it's the Air Academy Knowledge Bowl team. After scouring the four corners of Air Academy, Ms Newburn brought together the quickest minds to match wits with other teams nationwide. The oral team consisting of "Biology" Barb Whitehorn, Pete "Calculus" Rauch, Brett "The Brew" Brewington, and Tim "Don't call me a liberal" Johnson captured third place finishes in the American Association of University Women Knowledge Bowl and the Northglen Knowledge Bowl. The entire team earned a second place state finish in the Knowledge Master Open which highlighted a fall season. A new feature to this year's schedule was the return of KTSC-TV's Match Wits program. The three-person oral team did very well in the year-long competition. The Knowledge Bowl team showed their true talents in the art of mastering knowledge.

MATH CLUB

The Math Club showed true pride this year under the fearless leadership of Mrs. Williomson. They took part in many state and metro competitions doing well in each one. At the USC Math Day in November, the oral team consisting of Chris Tivel, Mike Eamon, and Pete Rauch took first place beating over 30 teams. Later, the written team received nearly half of the individual awards including Chris Tivel taking first ploce and Pete Rauch placing third. The Math Club participoted in the Colorado Math League competition and scored very highly. The Third Annual Air Academy Math Tournament was held this spring and the Math Team took top honors. When the club was not competing in contests, they spent their time practicing ond trying out for the oral team. The Math Club's year met with success shown by their pride and dominance of mathematics.

SPLITTING THE IMPOSSIBLE

Lightning lit the rainy night. Inside room 411, Mr. Lundburg and his third hour class performed experiments that tested the very fabric of life itself. Dividing the individual cells of living things and duplicating them through cloning was the essence of their mission. As the only Genetic Engineering class in the world at the high school level, they served as the cutting edge of technology. Words such as "callus organo genesis" and "DNA cloning" were common place. Each student worked on their own project during the year and met with great success as their experiments unfolded into even greater challenges. The material under discussion aroused interest in the students and drove them beyond their limits into areas untried by others, such as the absolute duplication of a strowberry. Under the leadership of Mr. Lundberg, the Genetic Engineering club stepped boldly where no one had gone before.

Kristin Volle and Jenny Reynolds are caught "cloning" around in class.

Raquel Petersen places her newly cloned plants in a specimen jar.

AVP

What is AVP? "It's not easy to explain" said Mr. Magneson, the program director. Basically, the Area Vocational Program provides students from Air Academy, Rampart and Liberty with the opportunity to get a head start on college classes while still earning high school credit. Pikes Peak Community College is the home base for the program. Students participating in AVP can take classes including Business, Math, English, Child Development, Welding, High Technology, and more. Classes in Auto Repair are held right at Air Academy and are taught by Mr. Magneson. Being the AVP director keeps him occupied, or in his words, "I am busier than a thon a one-legged cat in a litter box." AVP provides an exceptional educational experience for students who are ready to move on to college classes but still need high school credit.

Eric Weinbrenner uses the skills that he learned in Auto Repair.

A Few Words with the Science Club:

"We do neat experiments." "It's more than doing neat experiments. We talk about physics and properties of physics." "So it's kind of social. Demented and sad, but social."

"Being secretary of the club is enlightening. I've learned and done so much. I can't wait until we do all those fun experiments." "The Science Club is a great opportunity to excel scholastically. I'm really looking forward to the chance to prove myself at the upcoming Science Olympiad."

"We really want to win the Science Olympiad this year so we need the whole team to work together. Since I'm president, I try to get everyone organized and in agreement. I find compelling reasons to get people to agree with me."

"With Mrs. Smith heading the team, we're a sure bet to win the Science Olympiad."

LEADERSHIP

Does the Student Council govern the affairs of the school? When asked, students revealed that they were unaware that the council did anything other than plan social activities for the school. Students also expressed disapproval of the council's activities: "They need to get more people's opinions." said Brian Cassada. Teresa Ryan felt that "The Student Council had good ideas but I don't think that they carry them out well at all. In the spring of 1987, though, a record number of students vied for places on the council. Those aspiring leoders of the school gave different reasons for seeking office. "All by myself I can't make a difference . . . but at least on Council I can put my word in and make a difference." said Dena Summerfield (Senior Rep.). "I ran 'cause I wanted to make dances better," said Dance Committee Chairman Chris Beynon. Christine Golden (Senior Rep.) expressed a wish to ". . . change the image of the Council." Paul Angelico, Student Council advisor, felt that the main purpose of the group was to create a line of communication between the student body and the administration. Another complaint that students had about the Council was that it did not represent the entire student body, since, at most, 50% of the school voted in the executive council election.

Mr. Angelico responded to that complaint: "Not everyone is represented as well as they should be, but those kids who care enough to vote are . . ." When asked about the complaints, Dan Brown (Senior Rep.) said "There are a lot of things that council does that people just don't know about," and suggested the inter-club council and meetings with Dr. Ferguson as examples. The Student Council had a rough job and a reputation to live down. The organization is not truly a governing body, however it did live up to most of the goals of communication set up by the advisor. Most members agreed that it was a good learning experience.

"I didn't know thot Student Council would require a lot of technical experience," thinks Steve Livingston.

Mountaineering Club

Reaching great heights again once more was the Mountaineering Club. This club was not for the ordinary student. This group was for the daring, adventurous individual that aimed to challenge both mind and body. These high-spirited tried the elements in a variety of fashions. From rock climbing to cross country skiing, they met obstacles nature provided head on. From as close to home as the Garden of the Gods to as faraway as La Plata Peak in Buena Vista, beginners as well as advanced outdoorsmen fulfilled their thirst for adventure among the hills of Colorado. For the outdoorsy type at AA, the Mountaineering Club was the perfect answer for adventure.

Thespians, people who enjoy entertaining others, had a great first year at Air Academy. They are a group of very talented kids who have participated in two or more performances in two or more areas. Thespians are required not only to act but also to have worked as a technician or backstage hand. The officers of this creative group of students were Dena Summerfield as President, Emily Macomber as Vice President, Vonna Olsen as Secretary and Courtney Johns as Treasurer. According to their sponsor, Mrs. Rapp, the Thespian's goal was to pomote theater and to promote theater awareness." They did this by performing for a faculty party and sponsoring school productions. Even though it was the first year for this club at Air Academy, Thespians accomplished their goal and looked good while doing it.

Drama Club enjoyed its best year at Air Academy in '87. There were more members than any other year before. These members participated in fundraisers throughout the year. The money from these was used for school productions. They included a bake sale and concessions sold at the Montage showings.

Cross Cultures Club was a group that benefited all new and foreign exchange students at A.A. Its primary purpose wos to increase understanding between cultures, and to make new students feel welcome. To achieve this, many activities were planned. Members spent time during AC-AD-IM-Y and lunch introducing new students to the school. Members also enjoyed ice skating, movies, and pizza parties. This club, under the leadership of Matt Locke and Kristin Klaczkiewicz, provided new students with the opportunity to become involved in school activities, as well as make many new friends.

Quand on entre dans la salle de classe on est entouré de la culture française: La Tour Eiffel, le pain français, les bérets, et les éxpressions françaises. C'est peut-être la même! Ici France à Air Academy c'est le club français! Au début de l'année scolaire le club s'est promené dans Cheyenne Canyon. Autrement le club français avait un commencement lent. Cependant, ils ont des projets pour des activitiés au printemps. Le club est dirigé entierement par les etudiants. Madame Davis et Madame Eagan ont insisté sur l'importance de la direction des élèves. Cela donne aux présidents Terry Hall et Donna Wright la responsabilité totale pour les activitiés du groupe.

Latin Club proved that a person should frontinulla fides. Being an alboe gollinae (filii), as all of the members were meant being a part of a fun club. The members could have come across as portiers. They could have appeared as a bunch of kids getting together just to fool around. They could have-but the club was more. The Latin Club had annus mirabilis. Led by president Cindy DeGroff, and vice-presidents Kristin Volle and Roger Roybal, the members did more than dance and feast. They took part in various competitions focusing on Latin literature, grammar, and mythology. This eccentric group also onswered the cry of students for, "bis reptita placent."

German Club

Durch die neuen schöpferischen Ideen Frau Boyds wurde dem deutschen Klub dieses Jahr etwas neues hinzugefügt. Die mit Hilfe von den Beamten geplannten und spannenden Tätigkeiten des Vereins begeisterten alle.

Unterdessen hat der deutsche Klub eine neue Tradition erschaffen, d.H. die jährliche Feier Beethovens Geburtstag. Es wurde am 16. Dezember nicht nur beim Verein gefeiert sondern auch in den Klassen. Die Mitmacher assen deutsches essen und einige trugen sogar Kleidung aus Beethovens Lebenszeit. Dazu horte natürlich alle seine berühmte Musik an.

Solche Tätigkeiten in Zuzammenhang mit einer neuen aufgeregten Fordererin machte den deutschen Klub dieses Jahr besonders erfolgreich.

Spanish Club

Kerry May finds the "chiste" very humorous while Lanette Dairy is still contemplating the punch line.

Ser miembro del club español significaba más que sólo ir a algunas reuniones. Los estudiantes celebraron las navidades a la manera latina yendo de casa a casa cantando villancicos y festejando después con sus amigos. También comieron juntos en restaurantes y pasaron tiempo cultivando las amistades. Un miembro del club, Lorraine Willis, ha viajado a lugares lejanos y ha visto caras extranjeras. El verano pasado ella viajó con el grupo «Intercambio» para visitar España por seis semanas. Lorraine vivió con una familia española que la aceptó como uno de ellos desde el momento que ella bajó del tren en la ciudad de Cartagena. Allí, Lorraine corrió un maratón sola por pueblos pequeños y supo que realmente podía vivir en el extranjero.

Dear Diary:

That first night was a Herculean task. After hiking all day, screaming at hoards of boisterous kids to "pass the salad, sit down, and keep your fingers off the meat," scraping congealed lumps of cold food onto the scrap plate, gently forcing shy little bodies into luke warm showers, and reciting threats (if you don't go to bed now, you'll deeply regret it . . .") like a marine drill sergeant, I was ready to drop into bed. They, however, were not. After my numerous pleadings and countless storytelling, the idea of sleep seemed less objectionable to them; tranquility finally set in. Darkness surrounded our small cabin and the hours passed with soft snores and the occasional senseless babbling of a sleep-talker. Suddenly someone yanked on my sleeping bag, almost dragging me completely off my top bunk. I looked down in annoyance at the tear-streaked face that peered up at me. The clock read 2 a.m. "What?" I whispered. "I'm scared. I want to be at home with my mom and dad." How do you explain to a homesick kid that her parents are sixty miles away and that nothing in the world is gonna get her back home at two in the morning? I didn't even try. Instead I comforted her in the standard way ("Everything's going to be all right. You've only got four days, two hours, and twenty-three minutes left to go . . .") Finally, at 4:15 a.m. she fell asleep on my bunk. I gave up. When the alarm went off at 5:30, I didn't exactly feel like a happy camper. I groaned and staggered towards the showers - I had to get ready for a new day. I started by putting on a bright, happy High Trails counselor's smile and thinking "everything's going to work out great." Just then the shower curtain whipped open and six shrill voices screamed, "Got ya!"

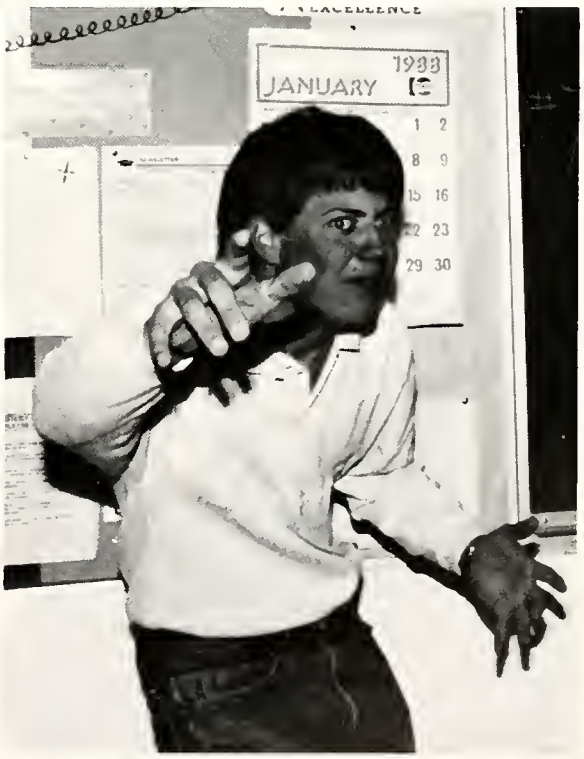
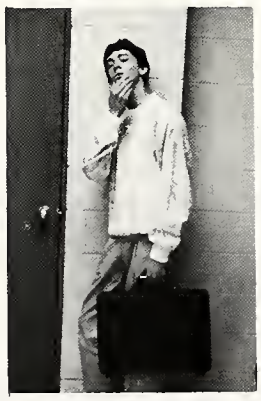
FORENSICS-n. The study or practice of formal debate, argumentation. About thirty of the school's most qualified students devoted themselves to speaking and debate. They practiced long hours during AC-AD-I-MY and in their spare time to achieve a perfection encountered by few clubs. Other areas worked on by members were Duet Acting, Student Government, and Improvisation. Nearly every week they went into competition, displaying their skills in forensics against other schools in the area. In each confrontationthey thrust themselves into the spotlight and learned a little more about their material. "Forensics allows students to feel more at ease speaking to groups of people," voices an enthusiastic Tim Farish. With President Jeff Wieland at the helm and Ms. Rapp's exceptional leadership, this year made for a well-baked team. Though Doug VanDoren said "I don't care what they say about Debate, Duet Acting is the hardest event!" The members supported each other with intense dedication. You can't argue that this year's forensics team, without a doubt, has come a long way.



"That's It!" says Tim Farish

Officers of FBLA, Mark Reynolds, Richard Anderson, Jill Kavorik, and Scott Perelstein, are proud of what they stand for.

Being tomorrow's entrepreneurs of business is what the FBLA is all about. The Future Business Leaders of America, according to sponsor Max Stucky, "participated in business activities to develop awareness of business leadership." The intra-school competitions produced winners in various business skills. These were: Amy Ashworth, Advanced Keyboarding, Stacey Dale, Keyboarding; Susannah Jones, Letter Production; Jen Walentas, Job/Application; and Megan Hall, Spelling. These students represented our school at District competition in February. They all did an extremely good job in competition and showed a promising future in tomarrow's world of economics. They met during Academy periods and along with their education of business, they also were co-sponsors of a toy drive with the organization DECA.



The members of FBLA show enthusiasm in all their endeavors.

"Have a Twix and a Smile!" says Brad Theil.

Imagine yourself standing in a crowded department store. You are acting as the store manager and are posed with a problem customer. What is the best thing to do? How should you handle the situation? These are the things that the members of DECA, Distributive Education Clubs of America, are taught and trained to handle. Eighteen students this year qualified in Districts for State competition at the Broadmoor. They represented our school in a truly professional, business-like manner under the sponsorship of Stan Woodworth. Now picture the end of third hour. As students' stomachs are growling a crowd begins to form in front of the Student Store. It finally opens and the tension is broken by a flood of orders. The DECA students serve each customer with a smile despite the stress of pleasing everyone.

K.N.O.W. Kids need other ways

Mrs. Dragren hands out license plate holders warning "stay alive don't drink and drive."

Jodi Krejci is a tutor who cares.

Students at Air Academy realized there was a problem with substance abuse at school. The answer was to form K.N.O.W., Kids need other ways. The club started small but was very active last year. This year there were about fifty members. The core group makes all the important decisions for a club this size. Alcohol Awareness week was the club's busiest week. Every day they tied red string on students' cars to remind them not to drink and drive over the holidays. Super Saver Discount Cards were a big fundraiser for the group. The club also traveled to area elementary schools where they put on skits dealing with the consequences of drugs and alcohol. Enthusiasm in K.N.O.W. has grown immensely, which should help deter substance and alcohol abuse.

The TUTORS of Air Academy

Ross Moscatelli Looks like he needs a tutor.

Tutors are Zoe Lainson, Lori Craig, Mariah Proctor, Richard Anderson, Mark Reynolds, Ken Frosh, John Beebe, Jodi Krejci, Mrs. Dragren, Kristen Klaczkawicz.

The Tutors of Air Academy High School are the unsung heroes. These students take time out of their busy, hectic schedule to lend a hand to other Kadets. They meet with students after school or during AcAdImY to help out with academic problems. Sometimes a little extra help from a tutor can make or break a student's grade. Tutors not only feel intrinsic reward in this octivity but they also recieve half a credit per semester for their services. Yeah! Let's hear it for these caring Kadets!

O . . . . AND MILES TO GO . . . . AND MILES

Kasey Langley was elected the 1987-1988 yearbook poster child.

Yearbook Photographers: Jack Gentle, Rick Vestal, Stacy Houdek, Karen Booker, Doug VanDoren, Kevin Smith, Cammy Clark.

AND MILES TO GO . . . . AND MILES TO

It was a dark and stormy classroom. Suddenly a scream pierced the air. "My pictures are gone!" A deadly silence followed. Someone had stolen the pictures for the last page of the yearbook. Who would think of committing such a dastardly deed the day before the deadline?

"I remember someone saying they wanted those pictures," said a photographer, "But all I can remember is that the person was one of the staff editors."

Well, that narrowed it down to ten people.

Suddenly the lights went out. "Stay still!" screamed Ms. Virzi. But somewhere in the depths of the yearbook room lurked a guilty editor and a frantic shuffling could be heard within the otherwise quiet classroom.

When the lights came back on, everything deceivingly appeared the same. However, the class soon noticed that Jill's customary space at the computer was empty! All that remained was a gold scarf. After a few minutes of mourning, the staff realized that they must get back to work.

Suddenly the lights went out. "Stay still!" screamed Ms. Virzi. When the lights came back on, everyone looked around to see what had happened. Tim and Krista were missing! All that was left at their table were Tim's copy of the Constitution and Krista's car keys. A few people glanced apprehensively at one another, but soon everyone was working diligently once again.

Suddenly the lights went out. "Stay still!" screamed Ms. Virzi. When the lighting was restored once again, Jeff, Susan, Mary, Lisa, and Karen were gone! The class looked around at their remains and saw only Jeff's mangled Snarf box, Susan's favorite crapper, Mary's typography book, one of Lisa's silver shoes and Karen's last business receipt.

All of the editors were gone except for Kasey and Susie. Could one of the beloved co-editors be the culprit? The staff cast suspicious looks at the last of the editors. By this time, the atmosphere in the yearbook room was extremely tense. Finally the guilt was too much.

"All right, I did it!" screamed Kasey and Susie simultaneously. They looked at each other curiously.

"All right, she did it!" shouted both of the girls.

"All right, all right, WE did it!"

After everyone quieted down, Kasey explained that they wanted the pictures and thought they could sneak them away without anyone noticing. They apologized and returned the picture to its rightful owner. As for the missing editors, Ms. Virzi found them in the darkroom eating pizza. Everyone got back to work and the staff lived happily ever after.

EXPRESSIONS

Untitled

With his sister at the curb, and a sparkle in is eyes, the young boy mounts the bicycle and prepares to show off. After 5 short feet, down he goes with the clatter of cold steel on the wet cement. His hands are bleeding now as he picks up the pieces of his fall and, although now frowning, heads towards the curb to mount the bike once again. He doesn't know it now, but this lesson is one that reaches far beyond his bleeding hands. It is a lesson in life and once more in love. Somehow it's one he'll likely never forget.

Death

Murderer, Killer, Assassin, Beast
A man killed another, not caring the least.
Had he some conflict? Some small debate?
Immoral, Illegal, belongs behind gates.
He must be punished, a price he must pay
For taking a life darkening the day.
A man killed another, he's ethically wrong,
Confine him and make his imprisonment long.

Meanwhile a larger conflict takes place,
Murder is legal in this special case.
"Kill them," the President says with a yawn.
Whirling, twirling, down falls the bomb,
Smoke rising up, fire and flame,
Ruining lives, feeling no shame.
Drifting, Drifting into the air
Goodby Everybody, nobody cares.
Goodbye Hiroshima shrieks Enola Gay,
Three cheers for the U.S. of A.

The killing of thousands versus killing just one.
The first is allowed if victory is won.
I can't see the difference, why it's all right.
Slaying, lynching all that's in sight
Comparing the killing, the sadness, the pain
Is worthless, wasted, simply in vain.
The difference, irrelevant, far screaming and cries
Sound horrid and ghastly no matter who dies.

I'm Still Waiting

You came again today-
Knocking softly,
Softly at my mind's door . . .
And my memory let you in,
I wondered where you'd been.

We danced across the fields
While the sun shone above,
Shone down on our faces . . .
Warming our faces as we ran,
Heads thrown back in laughter-
Hand in hand.

And then you were gone-
And I waited . . .

I've been sitting here for hours
Wondering how you are,
Wondering where you are,
My heart's being torn apart
And it rains inside my heart
As the promised silver lining vanishes from my cloud.

I suppose there is still that last hope,
That you will return.
Hope, like the dying flicker
of a candle's flame,
I realize that that too will soon die . . .
I return to reality and the dying embers of the fire.

Yes, I suppose there is still hope,
But I can't let those thoughts pervade my mind.
A lone tear finds its way down my cheek-
And, in the quiet coldness, somehow,
My lifeless legs carry me to the window,
Where my fingers trace the patterns
falling water drops,
From the first frost,
Down the window pane.

I'm still waiting-
It's been so long . . .

I watch through the window-
The Autumn chill overwhelms me,
I wait for your return . . .
And I watch Autumn's wind,
As it begins to blow the fallen leaves across your path . . .

I know that you will not return,
But I'm still waiting-
And I hope-
Until the candle finally burns itself out,
Or until I blow it out.

To My Friend

As I leave you, my friend,
I bequeath forth not much,
For I have not much which would express
What our relationship meant.

Oh, understand our comprehension
In the depths of our psychological state
For we had it in such a way
That no one else would understand.

When I felt lonely,
You stretched forth a hand
And your grip was enough
To pull forth all sadness from life ...

For myself I say not much
But my regrets can be many
As I say I could have been better
But I am no time walker.

I hope your appreciation will come forth to meet mine
And together we will form a star
Which shines so brightly above.

To my best friend: to you
I bequeath this star in Heaven
Which will twinkle at night
To remind you I'm still there
And waiting for your hand once more.

The Wind And I

In the springtime when she was gentle and warm I used to play with the wind. Her affectionate fingers caressed my hair, sweet strawberry kisses tantalized my lips.

In the summer when the searing heat cracked my skin, I went down by the stream to dip my sweaty feet in her cool, soothing waters. It made me happy, so I stayed long into the night.

But the wind was jealous and swirled with anger. Now in the fall when I saunter past the slowing stream I hear the bitter wind mewling in my ear. It's such a mournful sound that I'm sorry I was unfaithful.

Dryad

Tapping, tapping, ever calling
Was the lure of a dryad
Longing for she knew not what
But tempting, tapping with her finger
At a window where a goodman
Dwelt and prospered by the day.
At night a tapping, rustling tapping
At his alcove, dreamy tapping
Touching by a woodlike creature
Knowing not for what she longs
Yet sending dreamings all a-tappin
Beating on a goodman's pilt.
He dreams of forests, starely forests
Ages older than he has.
He dreams of axes, fire and axes
Topping staps and screams in pain
And then she ceases, dreams he on
And in a dream she goes up to him.
Queer a dream in which a fairy
Spritely like a sapling dances
She a spirit, he a goodman
Separate worlds and yet so close.
Inside a dream she seeks to catch him
Knowing not for why she comes
He dreams of plantings, fruit a-plucking
Fear and owning her response.
she knows not what she wants of him
But fruit of tree she does not give.

The goodman dies; he owned an orchard
To his son his estate falls
And falls a forest at his axes
Fire and axes servants take.
Now tapping, tapping at the window
Ivy creeps up to the sill
Now tapping, beating, painful strangling
Smashing, flailing, crying waits.
For what she knows not, dryad pleading
To a human deaf of ear
And cold of heart and cruel of hand.

The wood's a dying in a bonfire
Dies a dryad at the door.
The silvermoon looks down a-sighing
No more tapping, nevermore.

Lori Clark

Dearest Lori Anne,

If "measuring up" is what life is all about, you have certainly exceeded all of my expectations. You have been much more than just a daughter to me. You have been an inspiration, a confidant, a counselor, a philosopher beyond your years, and a delight to have around the house. I will miss you next year as you go off to college. Good luck! You have only just begun.

I love you, Dad

Cheryl Pretko

Cheryl,

To justly comment on a daughter's high school completion, one is normally bent toward reflecting past years, but past years are not the main focus. This has been by far your best year and marks the acceleration of momentum for which we expect a bright and fulfilling future for you. You don't need for us to wish you luck because you are in control and we only want to continue to share as much of your life with you as possible.

Love from Mom and Dad

Joe DeBerry

So proud to have you as our son and brother. We pray God's richest blessing upon you and all your future endeavars.

Andrea Mitchell

Andrea,

You are a very special person with so much going for you. I'm so lucky to have such a good friend like you for a sister. I will always value our close friendship.

I love you, Donielle

Todd Brightwell

Dear Todd,

Your goals never seem to be out of reach. We believe this is a pattern you'll continue throughout your life. Make up your mind, and go after it!

Love, Mom, Dad, Jason, and Angela

Danielle Mitchell

Danielle,

You are the best sister anyone could ever ask for. You're someone I can count on and you understond me more than anyone. In the future, no matter where you go or what we do, I know that we will always stay as close as ever. Nothing could ever come between us.

Always know that I love you. Andrea.

Terry Hall

Terry,

We are proud of you and love you. We wish you happiness always. Keep climbing those mountains.

Love Mom and Dad

Oop, thanks for being the greatest.

Love, Ro

Cathy Fleissner

Cathy dear,

You have always been the joy of our lives - full of love and giving. You are an achiever. Set your goals high and don't give up until you're there. You can do it! May your life be full of roses.

All our love always, Mom and Dad

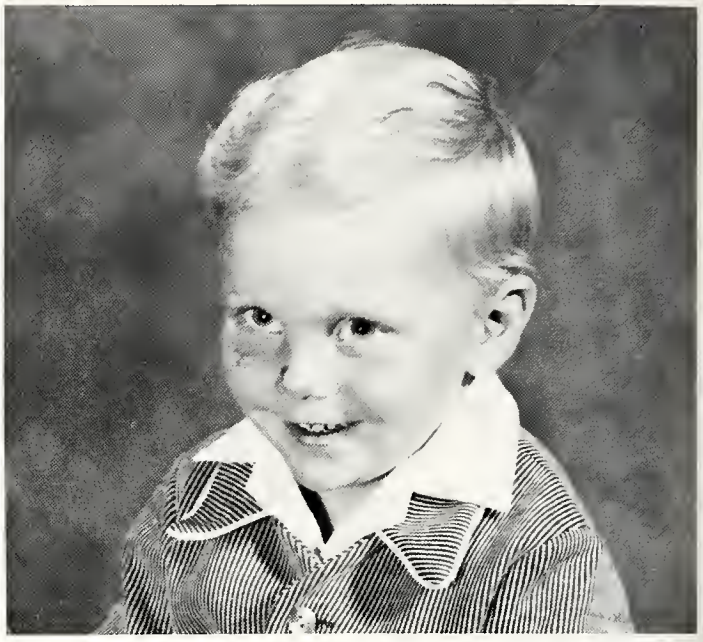
Laura Brown

Dear Laura,

It's been an exciting adventure from rug rat to graduate! You've given us memories we'll never forget! Our love and best wishes go out to you always. Keep on smiling, Laura.

We love you, Mom, Dad, and Eric

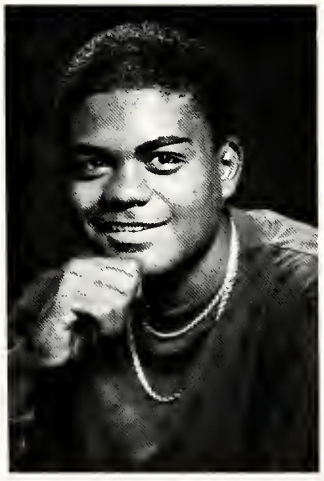
Shane Daily



Shane, you have in your possession all of the skills and talents not only to survive, but to succeed. Continually reach beyond your grasp and tomorrow's blessings will be yours each day. We're so very proud of you, son. Raising you may not have been always easy, but it has been always wonderful.

Our love forever, Mom and Dad

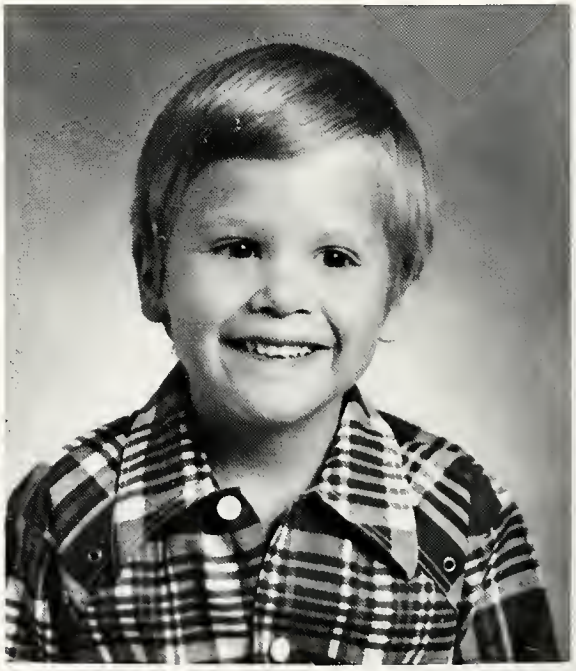
David Webb



We wish you the best of luck son!
We love you.

Mom and Dad

Ryan Kibler



Ryan - life with you has never been dull! There is a moment when a door opens and lets the future in . . . make your dreams reality. May all your dreams come true.
We love you. May God bless you always.

Mom, Dad, and R.J.

Cammy Clark

"I know a garden where the lilies gleam, and one who lingers in the sunshine there, she is that white-sroledlily far more fair and oh, her eyes are heoven lit with dreams."

We love you! Dad, Mom, Wendy, Nicki, and Tiffy

Doug Van Doren

Mr. Smooth,

Your talents and great sense of humor will take you far. Continue to reach for what you want. You are a natural. Even with brain damage, you are still A-OK!

Love, Natalie and The Cos

Becky Campbell

Dear Becky,

Good bye, good luck, God bless. We're proud of you!

Love Mom and Mike

Tiffany VandenHul

Hi Rainbow,

You've filled our home with music and love. We are proud of all your accomplishments but best of all, we like the person you are. We admire your determination to go after what you want and your ability to "stick to your guns" when you believe something is right. The best is yet to come!

Love, Mom, Dad, and "lil bro" Shawn

Denise Tompkins

Best of luck and complete success always - Your family loves you and supports you all the way!

Mom

Becky Campbell

Becky

Remember always the lessons of the mountains, of "Mach I Mae" and no obstacle will be so big or scary that you can't succeed. Also remember the poems "Myself" and "If" and most of all remember I love you.

Dad

Todd Thornburg

You have always had kindness, enthusiasm, empathy for others and a love of God in your heart. Continue to be true to these traits and your life and career will be fulfilling. You have been the greatest gift - a son we love, admire and respect. Keep your courage and keep "digging in."

Tiffany VandenHul

How 'bout a ride, Tiff? What a team we made!

Love, Shawn

COLOPHON

Air Academy High School's 1987-88 Vapor Trains, volume 31, yearbook was printed by the Josten's Printing Company in Topeka, Kansas. Dave Tarwater and Bill Holstein were the company representatives. The Theme, "And Miles To Go . . . " was carried throughout the book with the use of motifs, headlines, and other page features.

Colors in the book broke away from the standard blue and silver. These included Tempo P-700 Process Blue in the Senior and Sophomore sections, Tempo 185 Fire Engine Red in the Faculty section, Tempo 115 yellow in the Junior section, Tempo 347 Kelly Green in the Freshmen section, and Tempo 840 metallic Silver in the Opening. Staying with the italic printing used in previous books. Serif Gothic (35i) was employed throughout.

Every page within the 1987-88 yearbook was of original design by the staff members. With the use of art, graphics, other visual devices, exclusively done by students, the "And Miles to Go . . . " yearbook came alive to the Theme written 65 years ago by Robert Frost.

[illegible]
[illegible]
[illegible]
especially when you [illegible] what's new and news about me
[illegible] stay cool
[illegible] thank you drive me to lunch!

Kristy.

Lieber Stefan!
Es war so viel
Spaß in der 5. Stunde.
Ich hoffe, daß dein
Sommer schön ist. Bis nächstes Jahr!
Deine,
Travi Boyd

Mike,
Boy we had a lot of fun in Montage last year. Hope you do it next year, Im still undecided.
But they need you Mike.
Keep it going and have a great summer. English was cool! Take it easy
Ron

Mike,
although you bet
me all the time
in basketball 6-3
I'm still better
Steve Fawcett

= Mike
To the best
~~CC~~ manager
we've ever had!
Stay Keen!
